CONNECTING. ELEVATING. INSPIRING.

STACIE CRUMBAKER

Unmatched Commitment

One of the things I value most in this business is working with people whose passion truly shines through, and that's exactly what you see in Stacie Crumbaker. Real estate isn't just a job for her, it's in her roots.

Growing up surrounded by strong women in real estate, and later working alongside her mom, Char Costantino, she's carried on that legacy with a drive and heart that makes her stand out.

Stacie's clients love her because she treats every transaction with the same energy and commitment she'd bring to her own family. She doesn't stop until the deal is done, and it's not just about getting to the finish line, it's about making sure her clients feel cared for every step of the way. When you work with Stacie, you're not just getting an agent, you're joining a family that is as invested in your success as you are.

Outside of real estate, I love how grounded Stacie is in her own family life. Whether it's renovating her new home or making memories with her two kiddos, she brings that same sense of joy, determination, and balance into her work. It's easy to see why people trust her! She's relatable, genuine, and truly understands how important "home" really is.

That's why I'm proud to partner with Stacie. She brings the perfect combination of professionalism, passion, and heart. In a business where relationships matter most, Stacie reminds us that being a great agent isn't just about selling homes. It's about helping people create the lives they've been dreaming of.

L&J'S HANGRY KITCHEN

Balancing Business, Family, and a Little Fun in the Kitchen

Cooking slows us down, reminds us to savor the moment, and keeps us grounded in the relationships that matter.

This Week's Menu

Breakfasts - Bagels, Breakfast shake - Kefir, frozen berries, spinach, protein

Lunches - Chicken Salad Bento Box w/flat pretzels, a fruit, cubed cheddar, and French Onion Soup

Sunday - Turkey Meatloaf, Baked Potato, Sautéed Mushrooms, Roasted Asparagus

Monday - Meatloaf Sandwiches with Homemade Bread, Green Beans, and Trader Joe's Salad

Tuesday - Rock Fish Tacos and Chili Roasted Squash

Wednesday - Brisket Hash

Thursday - Leftover Night

Friday - PIZZA!

For me, cooking has always been more than just getting dinner on the table. It's a pause button in the middle of a busy life, a chance to step away from the phone calls, emails, and constant to-do lists. There's something grounding about chopping vegetables, stirring a pot, or pulling a meal out of the oven that brings me back to the present.

But the real magic happens when we sit down and share that meal. Whether it's with family or friends, those moments around the table create space for laughter, storytelling, and connection. In business, just like in the kitchen, we can get caught up in the hustle. Taking time to slow down reminds us that relationships are what make all the hard work worth it. Cooking and sharing food is my way of keeping that perspective. A little reminder that success feels best when you have people to share it with.

CHRIS FOX

When Christopher Fox handed the keys to his first homebuyer, something shifted. “Going through the process and handing those keys over was one of the most beautiful experiences I’ve ever had,” he says.

“That was the moment I knew I was meant for real estate.” It wasn’t just about closing a deal; it was about helping someone achieve something life-changing, and that feeling has guided him ever since.

Chris’s career didn’t begin in real estate. For six years, he worked as a loan officer until the 2008 mortgage crisis changed everything. In the middle of that uncertainty, his phone started ringing with families desperate for help. Many were struggling with their mortgages and negative equity. Helping them navigate short sales opened the door to what would become a lifelong career. “I wanted to be the person who could guide people through the hardest chapters of their financial lives,” he explains.

That purpose, rooted in service, still defines him today. Those early experiences taught Chris that success in real estate isn’t about chasing deals; it’s about helping people. He’s built his business on genuine relationships and a willingness to go all in. “I invest my heart, soul, time, effort, and money into every transaction,” he says. “I don’t just represent a client. I take on their goals as if they were my own.” Clients describe him as loyal, tenacious, and fully present, someone who treats every home like it’s his own.

Chris’s approach has earned him a reputation as one of the Inland Empire’s most trusted Realtors®. Through his leadership at Sold By Fox, he’s created a client experience unlike anything else in the market. His open house launch parties feel more like community events, complete with live music, food, and an inviting atmosphere that draws people in. His marketing is known for its creativity, cinematic storytelling, and results. Every detail is intentional and designed to showcase each property in its best light while attracting the right buyer.

For Chris, real estate has always been about transformation. “It’s the trust my clients put in me and the faith they have that I’ll make their dreams come true,” he says. “That means everything to me.” He’s known to move mountains for his clients and prides himself on delivering beyond expectations. Looking ahead, he plans to continue raising the bar by expanding Sold By Fox, launching a boutique office and escrow company, and growing his presence in the luxury market. “We’ve scratched the surface of luxury marketing,” he says. “Now we’re ready to double down.”

Mentorship and personal growth are central to his philosophy. His advice for new agents is simple but powerful: “Be passionate. Be authentic. Be sincere. Be obsessed.”

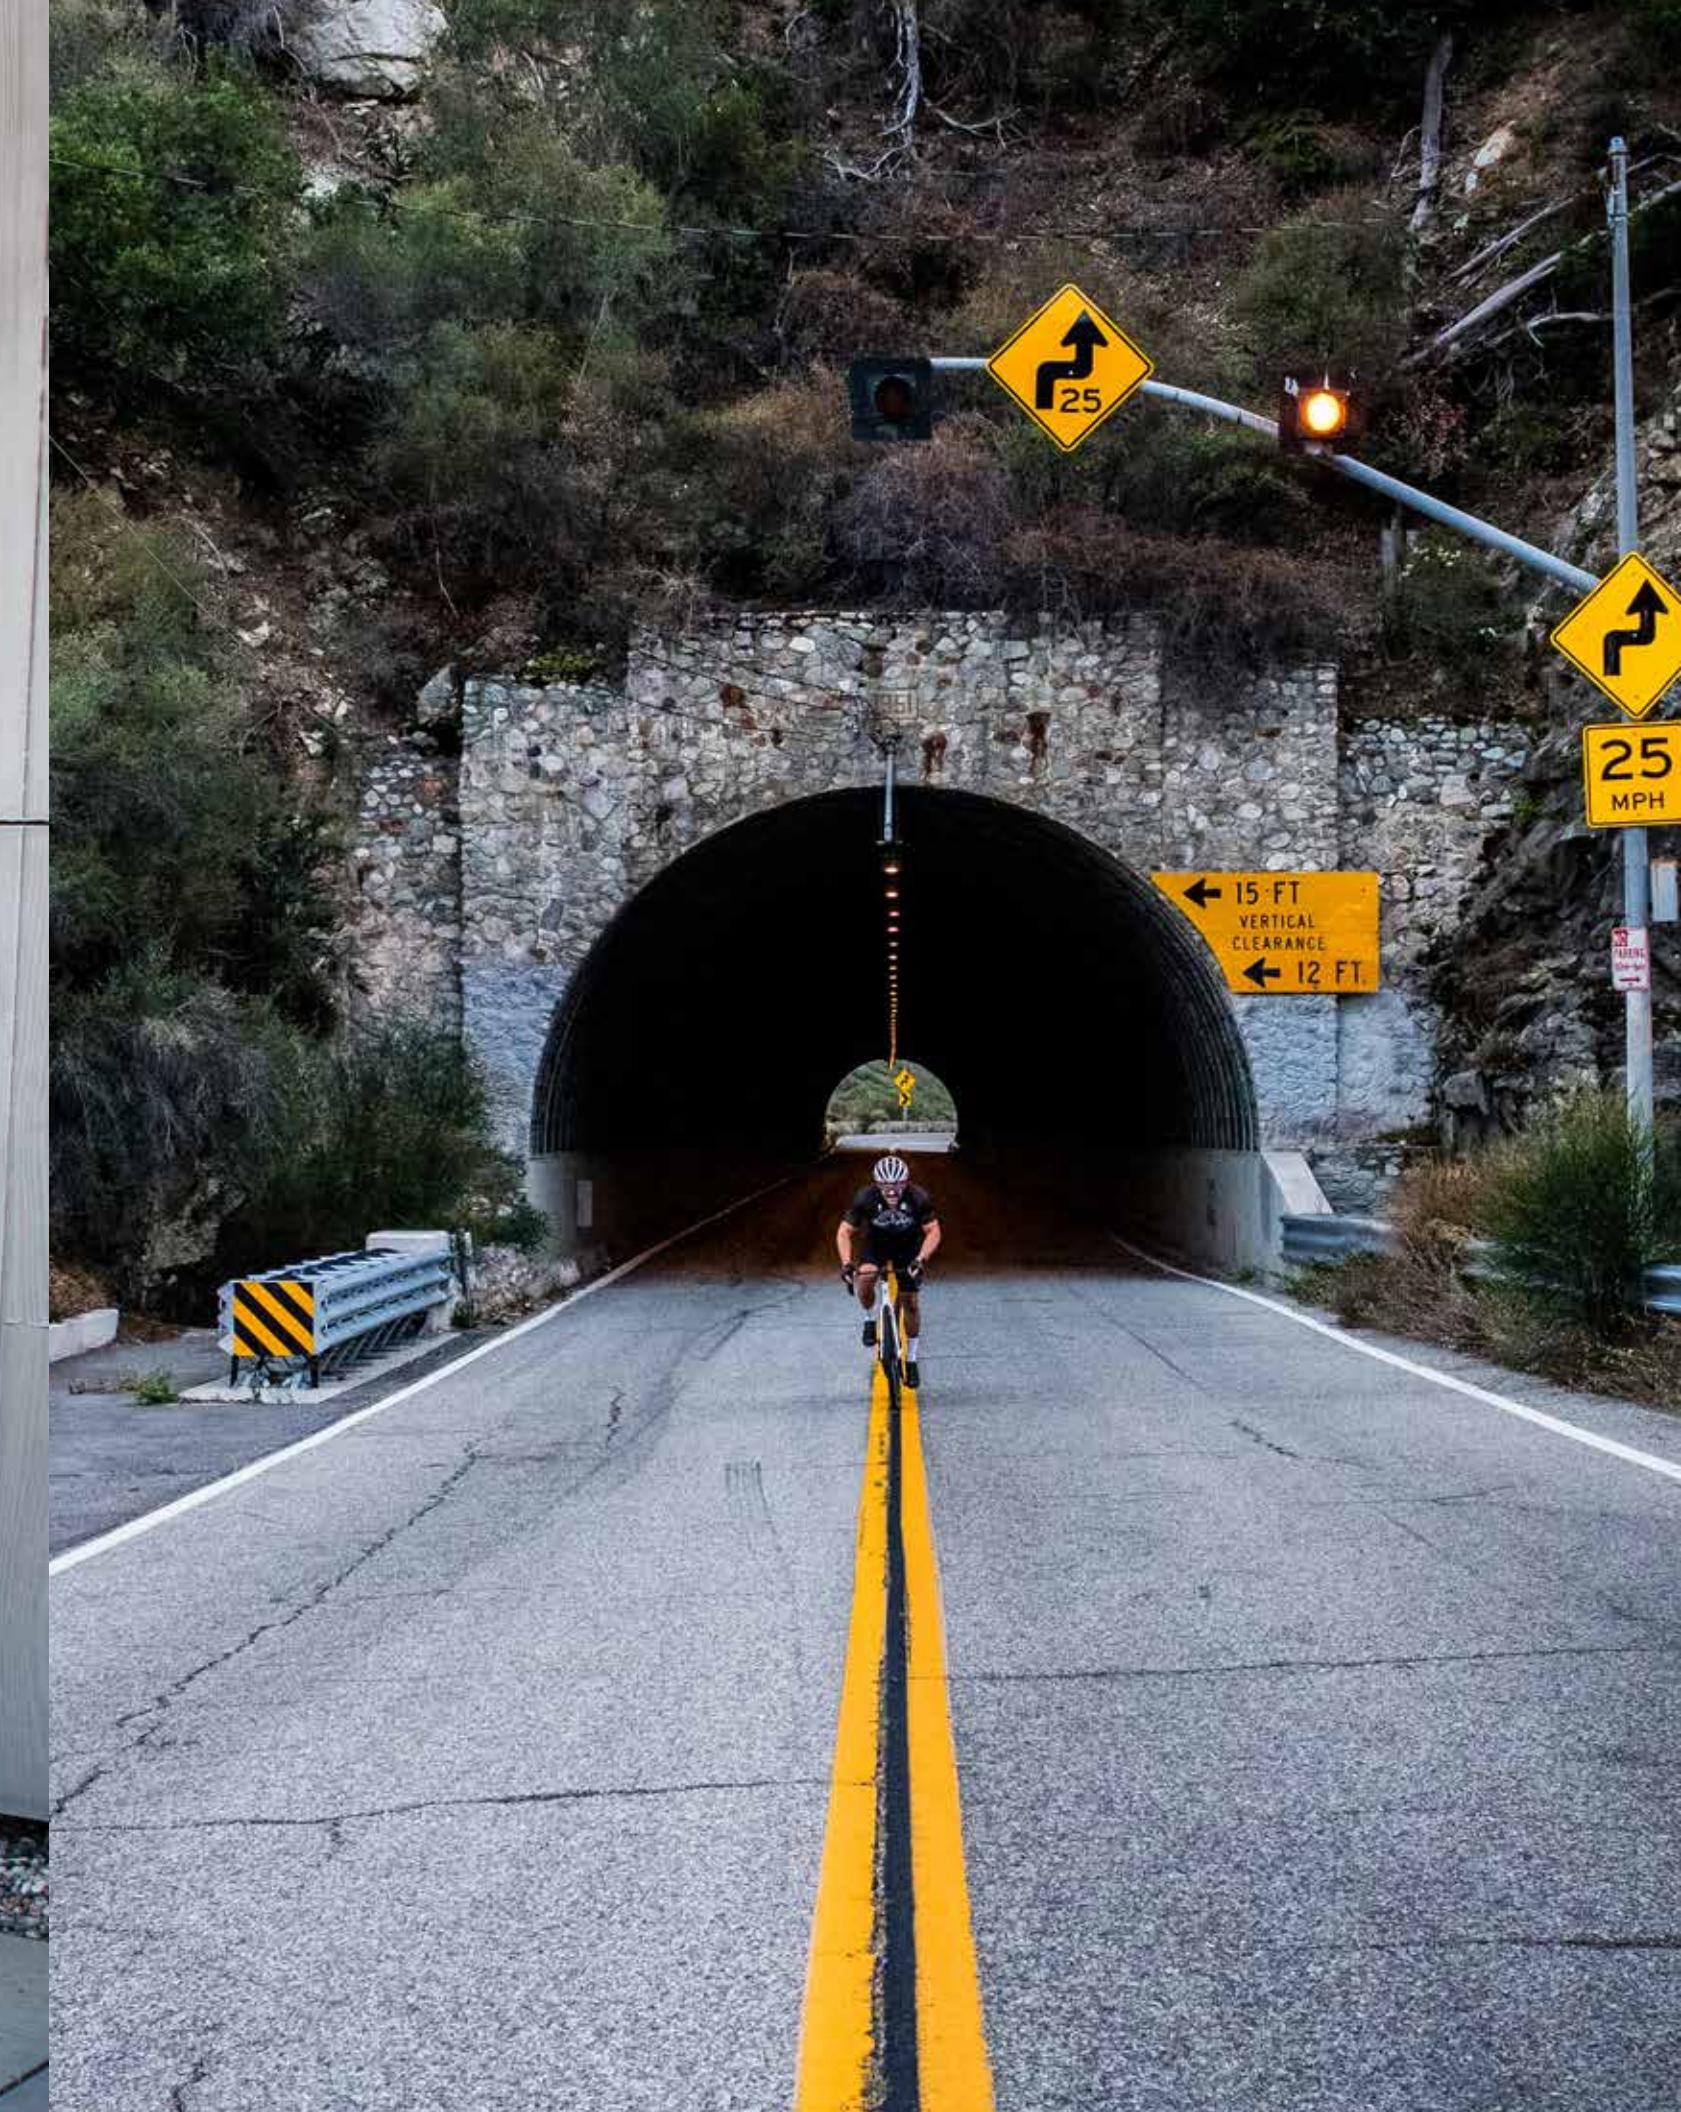

Outside of work, Chris’s greatest joy comes from family. He and his wife, Kelly, have been married for 20 years and have two children: Tyler, 13, a national dance champion, and Dylan, 8, a creative builder with an engineer’s mind. The family loves summers in Lake Havasu, winters in the desert, and RV trips full of adventure. “Kelly’s unconditional love and belief in me mean everything,” he says. “I’m scared to think where I’d be without her.” Along with family time, Chris stays active through off-roading, trail running, cycling, and snowboarding, activities that keep his mind clear and his energy high.

Chris also loves giving back to the community, sponsoring local youth sports teams and fundraisers whenever he can. “Sold By Fox is built on community, connection, experience, and results,” he says. “I want every client to feel that we’ve exceeded their expectations, that they were truly cared for and impressed by every detail.”

With heart, hustle, and humility, Christopher Fox continues to redefine what real estate looks like in the Inland Empire, one relationship at a time.

Be passionate. Be authentic.
Be sincere. Be obsessed.”

STEVIE Devey

Stevie Devey doesn't fit the mold of the traditional Realtor, and she doesn't want to. Known for her bold authenticity, Stevie has built a career on being relatable, approachable, and fiercely committed to the people she serves. She's not interested in polished scripts or cookie-cutter branding. Instead, she brings a mix of humor, empathy, and determination that clients recognize the moment they meet her.

Real estate wasn't her first career path. Even before she ever held her real estate license, she was someone people naturally turned to for guidance and encouragement. For 10 years, Stevie worked as a personal trainer, helping clients push through challenges with grit and consistency. Those same qualities, and that same energy became the backbone of her real estate career when she joined Keller Williams Realty four years ago. Many of her fitness clients trusted her enough to become her first real estate clients, and that foundation of loyalty continues to grow.

"I started real estate four years ago after years of mom guilt kept me from diving in," she said. "My kids were finally at an age where I felt like I could manage being a great agent and a great mom at the same time."

Stevie's approach is different because her focus isn't on the paycheck. She thrives on relationships and the chance to make a real difference in people's lives. One story still stands out to her: a mother facing eviction with her disabled daughter. Rather than watching the family lose their home, Stevie persuaded the homeowner to sell to them, worked with her lender to secure options, and even helped cover costs herself. That moment confirmed what she already felt, real estate is about trust, advocacy, and using every tool at her disposal to protect her clients' futures.

"I felt like God was really tapping me on the shoulder to lean in and he's put so many people in my path to help," said Stevie. "I know I'm here for a reason."

Her brand reflects who she is at her core: unapologetically real. She describes herself as tattooed and a little rebellious, but she also has the professionalism and expertise to deliver results. She makes clients laugh but also reassures them with her knowledge and persistence. It's a balance that feels genuine, and it's why so many people say working with her doesn't feel transactional, it feels personal.

"I felt like it was a calling to me," she said, remembering the moment she finally decided to pursue the career. That decision has proven right time and time again as she finds herself matched with clients who need her steady guidance and honest approach. Every closing for Stevie represents another chance to serve, connect, and show her family that purpose-driven work matters.

Outside of her career, Stevie prioritizes time with her husband Brennan and their three children, Kora, Vance, and Indie. The family trains together in jiu jitsu at Dan Henderson's Gym in Temecula and are active members of Centerpoint Church. To Stevie, family isn't just important, it's the anchor that drives everything she does.

Looking ahead, she hopes to acquire investment properties to help safeguard her children's future in an increasingly competitive housing market. For now, she's focused on the people in front of her, pouring her energy into every transaction with the same advice she offers new agents: stay consistent, keep your head down, and push forward even when results take time.

For clients who want more than a transaction, Stevie offers something rare. She's authentic, unfiltered, and invested in the people she serves. And in a business that can often feel impersonal, that difference matters.

“ I felt like God was really tapping me on the shoulder to lean in and he's put so many people in my path to help. I know I'm here for a reason.”
