YOUR LISTING?

YOUR CLIENT MAY BE OWED A NEW ROOF PAID FOR BY INSURANCE...

- ✓ A roof inspection now will prevent home inspection issues later.
- ✓ Deductibles are rising — catching damage early is key.
- ✓ A new roof boosts curb appeal and makes your listing stand out.
- ✓ It can increase appraised value and attract higher offers.
- ✓ May help lower the buyer's homeowner insurance premium — a great selling point.
- ✓ Many homes have had insurance-paid roof replacements — your listing may qualify too.

Leaning Into Love

Hello friends!

As we continue moving through the start of the year, we hope your holidays were filled with a lot of love and many special memories! Personally, I have had the gift and blessing of welcoming two new grandbabies to my family! Zadie and Elliot! What was your love story of 2025?

As the year starts to gain momentum, this season always still offers an opportunity to be intentional, with or without New Year's resolutions—honoring what mattered and matters most, looking ahead with hope and excitement for what's to come. We're grateful to be stepping into these early months alongside all of you! Such an inspiring community of entrepreneurs!

February invites us to continue leaning into love and reflection to celebrate Valentine's Day—but we encourage you not to let it stop there. Let this be a reminder to carry that same intention into your work, your relationships, and the way you show up for one another throughout the year.

We're also excited to announce our next event, and can't wait to gather again soon—so stay tuned for details! In the meantime, remember that we are always looking for realtor nominations and story ideas. We love celebrating you and highlighting the people and stories that make our real estate community so special.

As always, thank you for your continued support. We're honored to share this journey with you for EIGHT YEARS now and can't wait to see what this year brings!

With heartfelt appreciation,

Stacey Penrod

NICK BENNER

BY JESS WELLAR • PHOTOS BY STACY IDEUS

“Teaching at Conestoga taught me how to communicate clearly, stay patient, and build trust in real time,” Nick Benner begins. “Working with kids forces you to slow down, explain things simply, and meet people where they are.”

That instinct followed Nick well beyond the classroom. Nearly eight years into real estate, it remains the quiet backbone of how he operates: steady, thoughtful, and deeply invested in every outcome.

Small-Town Roots

Nick grew up on a farm in Central City, Nebraska, in what he describes as the best version of classic small-town life with plenty of freedom, fresh air, and a pace that allowed values to sink in early. His parents left the deepest imprint.

“I’M MUCH MORE INTERESTED IN BUILDING THINGS THAT FEEL GROUNDED, TIMELESS, AND GENUINELY LIVABLE THAN CHASING TRENDS OR VOLUME.”

— NICK BENNER

“My dad is the hardest worker I’ve ever known,” Nick offers. “He didn’t talk much about it — he just showed up every day and did what needed to be done.” That example shaped how Nick approaches work today: no shortcuts or theatrics, just consistency.

His mother’s influence runs just as deep. “She’s been battling cancer for several years now, and if you spent any time with her, you’d never know it,” Nick shares. “She has this incredible mindset, always steady, positive, and never complaining.” Watching her move through adversity with quiet strength reshaped how Nick handles stress as well as his daily perspective.

“Everything I do now — how I work, how I treat people, how seriously I take responsibility — traces back to my parents and that upbringing,” he affirms.

The Classroom Years

Before real estate, Nick spent six years teaching elementary school with Omaha Public Schools at Conestoga Elementary in North Omaha, working primarily with third graders and later sixth-grade students.

“I absolutely loved it and still miss it,” he admits. “Those years, and those kids, shaped me in a big way. But there are a lot of parallels between teaching and real estate.”

Nick originally envisioned a future in education. He earned a master’s degree in Educational Leadership and explored doctoral programs, drawn to systems-level change. Over time, though, he realized he wanted more agency, both in impact and in how effort translated to outcomes.

“I knew I thrived in highly relational environments,” Nick recalls. “I get energy from being around people, helping them work through uncertainty, and feeling useful day to day.”

Real estate offered a way to preserve those values while creating flexibility and ownership over his future. When Nick transitioned into real estate in May of 2018, it was a natural fit.

“More than anything, the transition felt true to who I am,” Nick shares. “It gave me a way to carry forward the same values I had in education into a new chapter.”

Clarity at the Core

A key career turning point came three years ago when Nick switched brokerages and began working under his current broker, Tom Simmons. “Tom had a huge impact on both my business and my life,”

Nick acknowledges. “He’s genuinely one of the best humans I know and truly wants to see everyone around him succeed in the highest ways.”

Today, Nick is a solo agent with Better Homes and Gardens in Dundee, closing consistently with strong volume, with over $15.4 million in 2024 across 42 transactions, with nearly $16 million in the books for 2025. He’s earned Emerald Elite recognition the past two years and previously received the Young Gun Award three times early in his career.

But accolades are clearly not what make him tick: “I don’t measure success by a single metric,” Nick explains. “It’s a mix of progress, alignment, and impact. I care a lot about the experience, not just the outcome.

“I also want people to feel comfortable, heard, and supported through something that can feel pretty overwhelming at times. That part of the work matters most to me.”

What truly sets him apart is his niche focus. Nick specializes in older homes and established urban neighborhoods, particularly Midtown areas with architectural character. “I’m drawn to places that feel lived-in and layered,” he offers. “Where the architecture, the streets, and the community tell a story.”

That focus comes with impressive technical knowledge as Nick has developed a deep understanding of “the bones and guts” of older homes: “I know what tends to age well, where issues typically show up, and how to separate true concerns from quirks,” he elaborates.

His approach remains straightforward, calm, and honest at all times. “The goal is clarity,” he says. “I don’t sugarcoat the realities, but I don’t over-dramatize them either.”

Family has always been Nick Benner’s foundation — from his upbringing in rural Nebraska to the life he’s building today.

Nick is very intentional about how he shows up as well: “I’m not buttoned-up or scripted, and I don’t try to be,” he points out. “I show up as myself — more likely in Chinos and sneakers than slacks and a name tag — and I keep things conversational and real.

Clients feel that genuine connection immediately. “A lot of people tell me I started out as their agent and became their friend,” Nick grins. “That means a lot to me because I hang my hat on building those deep, genuine relationships.”

Beyond The Office

Outside of contracts, Nick prefers the simple, grounded life. He shares his home with his girlfriend, Helen, and their two dogs. “She’s genuinely the funniest person I know,” he says of Helen. “She’s strong-willed, not a pushover, and challenges me in the best way — which is exactly what I need.”

Their dogs, Thomas, an eight-year-old French bulldog, and Frankie, a two-year-old dachshund, are central to their daily life. Walking through various local neighborhoods, traveling, and time outdoors keep things balanced.

Extremely routine-oriented, Nick loves to exercise each morning, is always dabbling in a handful of books at once, and enjoys hands-on projects. He fully renovated his 1930s Tudor home in Morton Meadows and remains profoundly interested in how things are built, as well as having a passion for interior design.

Looking ahead, Nick's future plans are measured, not rushed. He's purchased land and is currently exploring development with intention as he goes through the lengthy design phase. He's focused on urban infill and long-term livability, shaped by mentors who take the long view and projects that demand patience and care.

"What draws me to development isn't speed or scale," he concludes thoughtfully. "It's the responsibility of shaping places that people will live in for decades, where good design can add something meaningful without erasing what's already there.

"I'm much more interested in building things that feel grounded, timeless, and genuinely livable than chasing trends or volume."

In Memory of Nathan Phillips “Sandy” Dodge IV

1937-2026

Nathan Phillips “Sandy” Dodge IV, 89, passed away in the early hours of January 11, surrounded by his family. Born in 1937, Sandy marked his 89th birthday just days before his passing, the end to a long and meaningful life defined by integrity, quiet leadership, and a devotion to family and community that set a standard for others to emulate. Above all, he was an unwavering and devoted partner to his wife of 65 years, Kathleen “Kate” Cloney Dodge.

Sandy’s values showed most clearly in the way he treated people. He cared little for status, treating people from all walks of life with equal dignity. He listened more than he spoke, protected others when things went wrong, and asked of himself what more he could have done. For Sandy, ethics were a constant. He believed right and wrong were usually clear, that good work mattered, and that actions always speak louder than words.

Sandy was a devoted husband, father, and grandfather. In later years, the role of ‘Pa’ eclipsed the titles of chairman or president, revealing a warm and gentle man who endeared himself to older and younger generations alike. He was deeply connected to his grandchildren, who felt seen by him. The gestures he most favored — an affectionate hip check, a shoulder bump, a light punch on the arm — were his unmistakable way of saying: “I know you’re here, and I’m glad you are.”

Sandy graduated from Harvard University with a degree in American History. After Harvard, he entered the United States Air Force, ultimately serving as a Lieutenant Colonel. He returned to Omaha in 1962 and became the fourth-generation leader of the NP Dodge Company, founded in 1855 and the oldest real estate company in the United States still operated by its founding family. Over six decades of his leadership, the company grew in both scale and reputation, reflecting the values that defined his life: preparation, integrity, and care for the people around him. He was devoted to the company, but spoke with the most pride about the people who worked there and the culture they built together.

A true native son, Sandy viewed Omaha not just as a hometown, but as a community worthy of investment, stewardship, and care. He served on the boards of Methodist Hospital, Omaha Public Power District, the Omaha Community Playhouse Foundation, the Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce, and the American States Water Company, among many others. He shared his time with unflinching generosity and a quiet modesty, never seeking recognition.

Beneath his quiet demeanor was a true competitor. Sandy was a gifted athlete, an undefeated high school football player, basketball scoring leader, baseball captain, and a lifelong tennis player. He approached each sport and every competition with the same focus and good humor he brought to everything he did, whether in sports or in life. In all things, he held himself to demanding standards, yet showed an uncommon ability to make others feel accepted.

In addition to his loving wife, Kate, Sandy is survived by his children, Laura Dodge Luther (Mike), Nathan P. Dodge (Margaret), and Jennifer Dodge Altenau (David); nine grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. He is also survived by colleagues, business partners, and lifelong friends whose lives were shaped by his example.

In reflecting on Sandy’s life, those closest to him understand that his legacy is rooted not in visibility or acclaim—though his accomplishments are many—but in his impeccable moral compass, the quiet insistence that actions matter more than words, that work should be done well, and that communities are built by those willing to contribute without seeking credit. Omaha is stronger for his presence, and his influence endures in the company he guided, the institutions he served, and the family he loved.

To know Sandy Dodge was to know that goodness can walk among us in plain sight. His life was marked by achievement carried with quiet modesty, an ability to adapt to change with steadiness of effort, and a clarity about right and wrong that he didn’t just believe but lived. His family, his company, and his community are all better for his presence—and for the legacy he leaves for us.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Heafey-Hoffman-Dworak-Cutler, 7805 West Center Road, Omaha, NE 68124. Service is at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, January 15, at Trinity Episcopal Cathedral, 113 N 18th St, in Omaha. Memorial contributions may be made to Dodge Cares. Donations can be sent to 8601 W Dodge Rd, Ste 120, Omaha, NE 68114 or made online at DodgeCares.org.

TOAST REAL ESTATE

BUILDING with Their BEST

BY DAVE DANIELSON

For Ashley Cervený and Will May IV, real estate is about people, leadership, and intentionally building something that aligns with the life they want to live and the culture they want to lead. As co-owners of TOAST REAL ESTATE, an independent brokerage launched in May 2025, the engaged partners are redefining what growth looks like—by focusing less on size and more on quality.

Their day-to-day roles reflect complementary strengths: Ashley serves as listing specialist, team leader, and brokerage leader, driving production and business development. Will focuses on brokerage leadership, coaching, and agent development, helping others build sustainable, scalable businesses. Together, they've created a structure that supports agents at multiple stages of their careers while preserving a close-knit, high-performance culture.

Two Different Roads Into Real Estate

Ashley's path into the business began almost by accident. While working a corporate job, a friend suggested getting a real estate license "just to try it." What started as a part-time experiment quickly turned into a calling. Ashley knew early on that she wanted to be an entrepreneur—someone who could build something of her own rather than work for someone else.

Ashley made the leap to full-time real estate in 2022 and quickly built a thriving solo business. After connecting with Will, who was then a team leader at Keller Williams Greater Omaha, the two discovered a shared vision for raising the standard of what real estate could be.

In 2023, Ashley launched Toast Real Estate Group under KWGO. As the team gained traction, Will decided to step away from his leadership role and join Ashley, recognizing the opportunity to build something intentional and differentiated together. By 2024, they were running the team side-by-side.

TOAST REAL ESTATE officially launched as its own brokerage in May 2025, marking the culmination of years of collaboration, planning, and shared vision.

“We get to lead OUR FAMILY and OUR BUSINESS together. I get to do this with my best friend.”

Will's entry into real estate came from a very different place. Sales was practically a family tradition—one he was determined to avoid. He earned a business finance degree from Bellevue University, becoming the first in his family to do so, and set out to prove he didn't need sales to succeed.

That perspective shifted once he entered the workforce. Will realized that big goals require influence, and influence requires sales. After moving to Huntington Beach, California, he decided that if he was going to sell something, it might as well be something significant. With no local network, he began door-knocking—eventually knocking on more than 62,000 doors over four years. The experience forged his work ethic and launched his real estate career.

After returning to Nebraska, Will transitioned into leadership, focusing on coaching and developing agents. When he and Ashley connected in 2022, the alignment was immediate. Together with their blended family, it made the most sense to build one business together than two separate ones apart.

A Brokerage Built With Intention

Today, TOAST REAL ESTATE operates with three distinct models. The core model—led by Ashley—functions as a high-production unit with distinct specialties that test and refine systems, processes, and strategies. The shared services model allows agents to plug into proven operational support, such as marketing and listing management. The independent model is built for agents who want to run their own businesses with a flat-fee brokerage structure. Along with the models, the brokerage also operates a closing company (Cheers Closing) and staging company (Upstage), both overseen by Will.

The common thread across all three is coaching and development. Will and Ashley see their independent agents as future team leaders, not just producers. Agents are coached to follow a similar path to Ashley's—from solo agent to team leader—using systems already proven within the brokerage. Rather than aiming to be the largest brokerage in the market, TOAST REAL ESTATE focuses on being among the most productive and most intentional. "We're small by design," Ashley explains. "We want quality people, low ego, high standards, and a growth-minded culture."

Why the Work Matters

What Ashley and Will love most about their work isn't personal production—it's watching others grow. Helping agents gain clarity, confidence, and momentum in their businesses has become deeply rewarding. The culture at TOAST REAL ESTATE is one they actively protect: collaborative, driven, and genuinely fun.

Will puts it simply: "We get to lead our family and our business together. I get to do this with my best friend."

Life Beyond the Office

Family is central to everything they do. Together, Ashley and Will are raising three boys: William "Will" V, age nine;

Henrik, six; and Aysen, five. With two kindergartners and a third grader, life is busy, loud, and full.

In their free time, they love exploring Omaha, trying new restaurants, and traveling whenever possible—aiming for several trips a year. They're also famously competitive, whether it's volleyball, pickleball, dominoes, or family holiday games. "If there's a way to turn it into a competition, we will," Ashley laughs.

How They Hope to Be Known

When asked how they hope others would describe them, the answer is consistent: as genuine, trustworthy, and empathetic leaders. Low turnover within the brokerage reflects that agents believe in the vision and feel supported by it.

Every decision, they say, is made with people in mind—not just profit. "We're always going to do the right thing," Ashley says. "For our agents, our families, and the people who trust us."

With TOAST REAL ESTATE, Ashley Cervený and Will May IV aren't just building a brokerage. They're building a village—one rooted in integrity, leadership, and shared success.

Supreme LENDING

Realizing the Vision

After many years with her previous company, Stacy Thorne and her daughter, Brittany, made a thoughtful decision to begin a new chapter with Supreme Lending. It was a move guided by experience, values, and a clear vision for the future.

“We really put a lot of mindful effort into making sure the next move was going to be the right fit for our clients and us,” Stacy says. That careful consideration paid off. Supreme Lending quickly proved to be more than just a new company name—it became a platform that aligned seamlessly with how Stacy and Brittany serve their clients and grow their business.

A Mother–Daughter Team, Nine Years Strong

Stacy and her daughter, Brittany Westover, have worked side by side for nearly nine years, a milestone that feels especially meaningful this year. What began as a working relationship has evolved into a true partnership, with mother and daughter now co-operating their branch.

“It’s been a fun transition for us as mother and daughter,” Stacy shares. “And honestly, it’s been incredible to watch Brittany thrive.”

The story is even sweeter given that Brittany once insisted she would do “anything but what my mom does.” Growing up immersed in the mortgage industry—with its long hours, unpredictable schedules, and fast-paced demands—left a lasting impression. But after college, Brittany found her way back to the very profession she thought she’d avoid. Nine years later, she’s not just in the industry—she’s excelling in it.

“That’s always been one of my favorite stories,” Stacy says with a laugh. “She followed in my footsteps without realizing it, and now she’s such a success in her own right.”

What Sets Their Business Apart

At Supreme Lending, Stacy and Brittany are excited to offer expanded solutions that directly address the evolving needs of their market. One standout is their highly respected condo division, led by a well-known industry expert whose reputation has opened doors for affordability—particularly for first-time buyers.

Another key addition is their construction lending department, which has become a powerful resource for clients looking to build rather than buy. But perhaps most meaningful to Stacy is their reverse mortgage offering.

“We’re reverse mortgage certified, and that allows us to truly help seniors explore an option that can be life-changing when done correctly,” she explains. “That’s been a really fun and fulfilling addition to our business.”

Together, these offerings allow Stacy and Brittany to provide comprehensive Watching Brittany grow into her own success has been one of the greatest joys of my career. She followed in my footsteps without even realizing it.”

solutions across multiple stages of life—something they see as a cornerstone of their work.

Authenticity as a Business Strategy

One of the most striking aspects of Stacy and Brittany’s business is how much of it comes from relationships. Approximately 78% of their clients are friends, family, or members of their personal sphere.

“That’s not an accident,” Stacy says. “We’re very authentic, especially on social media. We don’t show up trying to sell—we show up being ourselves.”

That authenticity builds trust. Clients feel secure knowing they’re being given all their options, with the time and care needed to make informed decisions. It’s a service style rooted in experience, patience, and genuine connection.

Stacy Thorne is a seasoned mortgage professional and branch co-owner at Supreme Lending, known for her relationship-driven approach, deep industry knowledge, and passion for helping clients at every stage of life.

Brittany Westover is a rising leader in the mortgage industry and co-owner of the Supreme Lending branch alongside her mother. With nearly nine years of experience, she brings fresh perspective, professionalism, and heart to every client relationship.

“We never show up trying to sell. We show up as ourselves, and that authenticity is what builds trust.”
— Stacy Thorne

Family at the Center of It All

Family is a recurring theme in Stacy’s life, both personally and professionally. Brittany is married to her husband, Garret, whose family owns Westover Trucking near the Weeping Water area south of Louisville.

Together, they’re raising two young children: Huxley, nearly three, and Bentley, just four months old.

Stacy is also the proud mother of two sons. Her son Jarred recently separated from the Army after completing his service, while her youngest son, Brandon, is a staff sergeant stationed at Fort Drum in New York. Brandon and his wife, Darnecia—who is also active-duty Army—are raising their son Ayden, who turned one in January.

Life Beyond the Office

Despite a demanding career, Stacy makes time for the passions that recharge her. Thanks to the widespread adoption of Zoom—something that became standard during COVID—she’s able to travel more freely while still staying connected to her clients.

Much of that travel includes visits to New York to see her grandson, but it also takes her to one of her favorite destinations: Cozumel. An avid scuba diver, Stacy finds peace and adventure beneath the water’s surface. On land, she enjoys another passion that surprises many—riding her Harley motorcycle.

“Most people know me as the one who rides,” she says with a smile.

Looking Ahead with Gratitude

As Stacy reflects on this new chapter, her gratitude is unmistakable. Gratitude for the right professional fit. Gratitude for a daughter who has become a trusted business partner. And gratitude for a family legacy that continues to grow.

“It’s just fun to watch,” she says. “Seeing Brittany carry this forward so well—for herself, her family, and our business—it means everything.”

With Supreme Lending as their foundation and family as their compass, Stacy and Brittany are proving that when experience meets authenticity, success follows naturally.

JAMIE

CREATING HER PATH

For Jamie Schroder, stepping into real estate was less about a sudden career pivot and more about finally acting on a long-held goal. Now a real estate agent with eXp Realty's Virtue Group, Jamie is approaching her first full year in the business with confidence, momentum, and a growing sense that she is exactly where she belongs.

Licensed in January of this year and officially joining the Virtue Group in February, Jamie's entry into real estate came at the right time. "It's something I always wanted to do," she says. "I just never really knew how to start—what classes to take or what the process looked like." That changed when a close friend entered the business. Watching someone she trusted take the leap gave Jamie the nudge she needed. With nothing to lose, she enrolled in classes, earned her license, and began building her new career.

From Curiosity to Commitment

An important piece of Jamie's transition was familiarity. The team leader she joined had been her own real estate agent for eight years, which made reaching out feel natural. "I just gave her a call and asked if I could join the team," Jamie recalls. That call opened the door to a supportive environment that helped smooth the transition from a traditional 9-to-5 job into the flexible—but demanding—world of real estate.

Adjusting to an open schedule proved to be one of the biggest challenges. "Keeping myself busy and managing my time was the hardest part," she admits. But strong training, regular activities, and team-led events helped her quickly build a client database and gain confidence. "They did a really good job training me," she says. "That made a huge difference."

What She Loves Most

At the heart of Jamie's work is people. Her favorite part of real estate is helping clients find the home that truly fits them. "You can always tell," she explains. "When you walk into the right house, something changes—their personality, their energy. You just know." Being part of that moment is what makes the work so rewarding for her.

That people-first mindset has translated into early success. In her first year, Jamie closed approximately $3 million in sales across eight transactions—an impressive milestone for

WHEN YOU WALK INTO THE RIGHT
HOUSE, SOMETHING CHANGES.
YOU CAN FEEL IT IMMEDIATELY.”

— JAMIE SCHRODER

a new agent. While she doesn't define herself by numbers, she appreciates the encouragement she's received along the way. "They tell me I'm doing really well for my first year," she says. "That feels good."

Driven by Family

Behind Jamie's motivation is her family. She and her husband, Ross, are raising a busy household with four children. Her family includes Patience Dodson, Clara Maguire, Paisley Schroder, and Cruz Schroder. Supporting her family—and being present for all the activities that come with it—is a powerful driving force.

"My family is my biggest 'why,'" Jamie says. "They have things they want to do, and I want to be able to support that." At the same time, real estate offers her something just as important: enjoyment. "I actually like what I'm doing," she says. "I wanted to do this a long time ago, and I finally decided to go for it."

Creative Passions Beyond the Sale

Outside of real estate transactions, Jamie enjoys expressing her creativity. She has a strong interest in staging and interior design and has been helping a teammate grow her staging business. That creative outlet complements her real estate work, allowing her to see homes not just as listings, but as spaces full of potential.

Her schedule doesn't slow down there. Jamie also coaches her daughter's softball team, a commitment she takes seriously and one that reflects her hands-on, involved approach to family life. Balancing business, creativity, and coaching keeps her days full, but also fulfilling.

Advice for New Agents

For those just starting out in real estate, Jamie offers honest, practical advice. "Don't give up," she says. "It's hard at the beginning. You have a lot of fees, and it can feel overwhelming." Her recommendation is to find a team that fits. "Joining a team really helps you find the right path," she explains.

Jamie Schroder's children: Patience, Clara, Paisley, and Cruz.

"It makes things easier to navigate when you're new."

She's quick to add that patience matters. "Things do get easier," she says. "You just have to stick with it."

How She Hopes to Be Remembered

When asked how she hopes clients and colleagues would describe her, Jamie doesn't hesitate. "People tell me I'm Jamie Schroder with the Virtue Group at eXp Realty, the team that supported her transition into real estate and helped shape her first year in the business.

“MY FAMILY IS MY BIGGEST ‘WHY.’ I WANT TO BE PRESENT FOR THEM AND SUPPORT EVERYTHING THEY WANT TO DO.”

— JAMIE SCHRODER

very down to earth,” she says. She’s also known as a calm problem-solver—someone who doesn’t get flustered under pressure. “I don’t really get stressed or frustrated,” she explains. “I just stay calm and work through it.”

That steady demeanor, paired with a personable and patient approach, has helped Jamie build trust quickly in her growing network.

As she continues to build her career with eXp Realty and the Virtue Group, Jamie Schroder’s story is one of quiet determination, steady growth, and genuine care for the people she serves. For Jamie, real estate isn’t just a job—it’s a long-awaited opportunity finally realized, and one she’s embracing fully.
